The examination

An ultrasound examination is safe and painless, using sound waves to produce a picture on a TV screen.

You will lie on a couch, adjust your clothes and some gel will be applied to the area being scanned. A small handheld machine, which emits sound waves, will be moved over your skin to produce images. The gel will be wiped off after the examination.

The Sonographer / Radiologist will concentrate on the TV screen during the examination which normally takes 15-30 mins depending upon the type of examination requested.

Please leave all jewellery and valuables at home as you may be asked to remove these for your examination.

The equipment has limitations in respect of body height, weight and shape. This could prevent us from performing the examination and this may only be determined on the day of your scan. We apologise for any inconvenience this may cause.

All patients have the right, if they wish, to a chaperone present during the examination. If you would like a chaperone, please speak to a member of staff.

By attending for your appointment, you will be giving consent for the examination. If we require formal written consent, we will ask you to sign at the time of your examination.

There is no preparation necessary for this examination and you can take all your usual medications.

Finally

The pictures taken during the examination are studied carefully and a detailed report is produced. The results will be sent to the person who referred you for the test. They will discuss the results with you and any treatment you may need.

You may already have an appointment with the team who referred you. If not, please contact them to arrange one to discuss the results of this test.

Occasionally you may require further examinations once your doctor has seen your images. Please do not be concerned if this happens. If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to call the Radiology Department via the number given on your appointment letter.
