Who are the Upper Gastrointestinal Nurse Specialist Nurses?

The Upper Gastrointestinal Nurse Specialist specialises in the care and management of patients with conditions of the oesophagus, stomach, pancreas, liver, gallbladder and bile duct.

It is our role to provide advice and support to patients and their families who have been affected by illnesses of these organs.

We are here as a point of contact for patients from diagnosis and onwards, to provide clear information to those who want it, and hopefully reduce some of their fears and anxieties they may be facing.

We work closely with the doctors and nurses within the hospital, on the wards, clinics and other departments and it is our aim to support you and those closest to you throughout your illness.

This leaflet will give you some insight into ways in which we may be of help to you.

How can we help you?

We can explain what is involved with each test that is requested and what each test is looking for.

We can give you information on the condition you have been diagnosed with and make sure that you understand what is happening at each stage of your treatment.

We can put you in touch with other services within the hospital and the community that may be of help and support to you and your family.

Often when you leave hospital you may think of things you want to ask or don't know where to get information from.

You may experience new symptoms that you would like to discuss or require support with.

During this time of uncertainty, please contact us. If we cannot personally help, we will put you in contact with someone who can.
